MARKSBURY

Rev. B. J. Skaggs has been suffering greatly for the past week from a carbuncle on his neck.

Mr. W. L. Doolin and Dave Rankin have returned from a trip to the mountains where they enjoyed a bird hunt.

The Ladies Working Society decided at the last meeting to take orders for the Larkin Company. Any members who desire any of Larkin's products can report to Mrs. R. L. Clark. The society will meet with Mrs. R. S. Clark next Thursday.

A wreck occurred last Sunday at noon when a larger touring car crashed into a runabout driven by D. S. Swope. While making a turn into his gate, the little car was carried several feet. The force of the car was stopped by both cars being driven into a gate post. It is said the car was driven at least 30 miles per hour. Miss Sallis Lou Naylor, the sister of the driver was thrown from her seat and landed between the two cars—was picked up unconscious, but restoratives administered by kind friends and a little rest soon brought Miss Naylor in condition to be carried home. Death to the occupants of the little car would have been inevitable had not Mr. Naylor swerved his car so as to strike the engine of the little car instead of the body. All the parties were coming home from church. The young boys as well as older ones, who swing a round curve at 30 miles or more should take warning from this accident. We are glad to report that Miss Arnold is getting along nicely and was only left with a few bruises.

And another week we give you something for almost nothing.

GIVE WOODWORK DILIGENT CARE

Treatment That Oiled, Painted,
Waxed and Varnished Floors
Should Receive.

FEW HINTS BY SPECIALISTS

Unfinished Wood Surfaces Absorb Grease and Dirt More Readily Than Those With Pores Filled—Covering for Kitchen.

Wood forms a large percentage of the surfaces that must be cared for in a home. The following suggestions made by household specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture are to help the housekeeper to preserve and keep in good condition the wood, both in the interior of the house itself and in the furniture. Unfinished wood surfaces absorb grease and dirt more readily, are more likely to stain, and are harder to keep clean than those in which the pores of the wood are filled with varnish, oil, paint, or other finish. In general a house should contain as few unfinished wood surfaces as possible. In the kitchen, for example, labor may be saved by finishing or covering the floor, by covering the table with oil cloth, linoleum, or zinc, and by painting or varnishing the rest of the furniture.

Scrubbing Unfinished Surfaces. Unfinished wood surfaces may be scrubbed with the grain of the wood, using small quantities of water and a mild soap, rinsed with a cloth wrung out of clear water, and wiped dry. Strong soaps, alkalis, and too much water darken wood and may soften it. If the dirt cannot be removed with soap and water, a scourer, such as fine steel wool or powdered pumice may be used. Unfinished wood can be bleached with caustic soda solution, which is poisonous. The wood should be covered thickly with the solution, allowed to dry, and then thoroughly washed until all traces of the soda are removed.

If grease is spilled on unfinished wood, cold water should be applied at once, if possible, in order to harden the grease and prevent its spreading. Then as much grease as possible should be scraped off with a knife, and the spot scrubbed with a washing soda or lye solution. If the spot appears dark, a paste made of fuller's earth and water should be spread over it and allowed to remain overnight.

It is advisable to sweep oiled floors with a soft brush and dust them with a dry or oiled mop. Occasionally they may be washed and afterwards wiped with an oily cloth. Water should be used sparingly, and care taken to rub the oil in well and not to use so much that a surplus is left on the surface to hold dust and be tracked onto rugs.

Varnished and shellacked surfaces should ordinarily be dusted clean with a soft brush or cloth and polished with an oiled mop or soft cloth moistened with a few drops of light lubricating oil, lemon oil, or furniture polish. Rub in well the oil or polish and remove any surplus with a soft cloth. In general, varnished and shellacked surfaces should not be touched with water; however, if badly soiled they may be wiped with a cloth wrung out of warm, slightly soapy water, wiped dry at once, and then polished with oil. The appearance of badly worn, varnished woodwork may be improved by rubbing it with a good grade of floor wax.

Cleaning Waxed Surfaces.

Waxed surfaces may be cleaned with a soft dry duster, or, in the case of floors, a soft brush or a mop free from oil. The film of dirt and wax which darkens the surface may be removed with a cloth wrung out of warm soapy water, or, better, with one moistened with turpentine or gasoline; the latter method brightens as well as cleans the surface, whereas water dulls and whitens wax. Both turpentine and gasoline are highly inflammable and should never be used in a room where there is a fire or a lighted lamp or candle. Where a waxed surface has been dulled by water the luster and color may be restored by rubbing with a warm woolen cloth or a weighted brush. Many spots on waxed surfaces may be removed by rubbing with a little turpentine and finishing with a little wax.
